

OSA Telegraph Keeps Publishing

Our student-driven online magazine, published OSA Literary Arts, helps our community stay connected.

Our own online magazine OSA Telegraph just went live with its April issue, continuing to publish even during remote learning. Edited and facilitated by OSA Literary Arts chair Jordan Karnes, the Telegraph continues its tradition of providing content focused on student life and culture with an eye toward larger social and political trends. This month's features include tips on self-care, a look at how schools in Oakland are coping with remote learning, an article on how COVID-19 and labor issues intersect, and a feature about OSA's own Off the Table series (performances of which are already linked under our page OSA Creates at Home.)
